AI Overview

Router connector boxes range from as low as $1-$3 for basic RJ45 surface mount boxes to $150+ for advanced Wi-Fi router storage or network enclosures.

RJ45 Connector Boxes RJ45 connector boxes, used for Ethernet connections, vary widely depending on type, port count, and features:

- Single-port surface mount boxes: $1-$3 for basic Cat5e/Cat6 boxes, suitable for home or small office setups (Primus Cable, Newegg)
- Multi-port or loaded boxes: $5-$15 for 2-6 port boxes with pre-installed keystone jacks or punch-down connections (Amazon, eBay)
- Bulk packs: 50-100 units can range from $10-$125 depending on Cat5e/Cat6 rating and shielding (eBay, Amazon)
- Specialty or industrial boxes: Weatherproof, IP68-rated, or panel-mount boxes can cost $15-$50+ per unit (Alibaba, Amazon)

These boxes are used for connecting routers, switches, and other network devices, and prices increase with port count, shielding, and durability features.

Wi-Fi Router Storage Boxes These boxes are designed to organize, conceal, and protect Wi-Fi routers and modems:

- Basic plastic or bamboo organizers: $12-$30, suitable for small home setups (Walmart, Amazon)
- Wooden or decorative boxes with cable management: $25-$110, often wall-mountable or tabletop, with ventilation and multi-device storage (Wayfair, Amazon, Target)
- Premium or large enclosures: $90-$150+, including multifunctional server cabinets or wall-mounted network enclosures with lockable doors and heat dissipation (Wayfair, Target, Lowe's)

These boxes help reduce clutter, improve aesthetics, and sometimes provide additional features like ventilation, cable routing, or security.
